

Celebrating Divine Chocolate
by Bede from Newcastle Upon Tyne

Rustle. Off comes the paper.

Crack. The bar in two.

Mmm. The taste is a jamboree.

But I've got a question for you.

Have you ever considered,

The effort it takes,

To create a soiree in your mouth?

This is what the farmers create.

What an immense journey,

Your chocolate comes from afar,

It all starts in Ghana,

A small bean becomes a bar.

The process is exhausting,

If only there was a helping hand,

But the farmers have fair pay

Communities can therefore expand.

Who provides the remuneration?

Who can we revel about?

*It's Fairtrade, with Divine chocolate,
A partnership that deserves a shout out.*

So when you next hear that rustle,

The crack and the mmm of bliss,

*Celebrate and taste joy and happiness,
It's a party that you can't afford to miss.*
